

Littleton Physical Therapy

Steven Huber, PT, DPT

Steve is the Clinic Director for both the Highlands Ranch Town Center and Littleton Physical Therapy Clinics. Steve attained his Doctorate of Physical Therapy from Rosalind Franklin University of Medicine and Science in 2012 and completed his undergraduate degree in Kinesiology, graduating with Honors from Michigan State University. Steve specializes in treating many orthopedic conditions including running injuries, postoperative, hips, knees, shoulders, and the spine. Steve places a strong emphasis on postural training, core stability, and patient education. He is certified in Functional Dry Needling and High-Velocity Low-Amplitude Thrust Manipulation of the Cervical, Thoracic, Lumbar, and Sacroiliac Joints.

Kate Sparks, PT, DPT

Kate completed her undergraduate degree in Kinesiology at Pennsylvania State University. She then attained her Doctorate of Physical Therapy degree from Northern Arizona University in 2017 and started with Panorama shortly after. Kate enjoys working with a variety of orthopedic conditions including athletes and post-operative patients in order to help them achieve their goals and return to their prior level of activity.

John Kirby, PTA

John graduated from PIMA Medical Institute in 2012. While attending PIMA he was voted class president and was part of the student council for his program. Since graduating, John has been an active member on advisory boards for all three local PTA programs and is a certified Clinical Instructor. John currently has over 7 years of outpatient orthopedics physical therapy experience. His treatments emphasize patient education, core strengthening and returning to functional activities. John also specializes in gait analysis with proper shoe apparel, he incorporates muscle energy therapy, instrument assisted manual therapy and cupping into daily treatment sessions.

Jordan Adrian, PT, DPT

Jordan completed his Doctorate in Physical Therapy from Rockhurst University in Kansas City after graduating with a B.S. in Dietetics from Fontbonne University in St. Louis. Jordan enjoys treating patients with orthopedic injuries across the age spectrum including athletes, spine conditions, and post-surgical patients. He places a strong emphasis on educating patients in helping to better understand their conditions and working towards maximizing function.